Casta Diva Group brings the Monaco Growth Forums to Milan

Casta Diva Group organises the Monaco Growth Forums in Milan for the first time. The international event dedicated to high growth potential companies and institutional investors throughout the world is to be held tonight, 29th January until tomorrow, 30th January. The 13th edition of the forum will focus on the new blockchain technology and is expected to attract a large number of companies and more than 100 investors from 15 different countries.

The quarterly event, recently taken over by Casta Diva Group, a multinational communications company listed on AIM Italia, kicks off tonight with a networking event at the famous jazz club, Blue Note Milano, and goes live tomorrow with institutional presentations and keynote speeches, along with one-to-one meetings. On Wednesday, the forum and its key actors will move to Montecarlo, where companies will have the possibility to meet with other institutional investors.

Monaco Growth Forums, here's who will be talking about the new blockchain technology. At Monaco Growth Forums, Jon Najarian, professional investor, money manager, teacher and co-founder of Najarian Family Office and Rebellion Partners, also famous as the presenter of CNBC, will be participating in the discussion on the new blockchain technology.

Timo Lehes, a successful software company investor, will also be participating, having contributed to the development of numerous alternative investment platforms. He is currently a member of the administration board of BankerBay, the largest origination platform on a worldwide scale for the private equity market.

Also making an appearance is Nick Saponaro, Full Stack Engineer professional and co-founder of the Divi Project. His many years of experience investing in cryptocurrency combined with his talent and skill in the field of web programming, has afforded him much success in the blockchain industry among others.

Finally, a contribution will also be made by Andrea De Micheli, CEO of Casta Diva Group, boasting impressive experience in the live communication and branded content sector. He has produced more than one-thousand TV ads for hundreds of major brands in thirty different countries, as well as hundreds of shorts, videos and web contents. He holds two masters in Cinema and Multimedia and together with his partner, Luca Oddo, has written the only manual on the production of TV ads: "The Ad Factory", with a preface by Spike Lee.
